Mackintosh, John, P. (1929-1978) Academic and Politician

John Mackintosh was born in Simla, India on 24th August 1929. He moved to Edinburgh at the age of eleven, his education began at Melville College and then the University of Edinburgh. He then moved to Balliol College Oxford reading Philosophy, Politics and Economics from 1950-2 before moving to Princeton University for postgraduate study. His academic career began in Nigeria where he worked as a senior lecturer in Government at the University of Ibadan, Nigeria from 1961-63. His thesis entitled 'The British Cabinet' was published in 1962 and he became a Labour M.P. for Berwick and East Lothian in 1966. He was a dedicated constituency MP who was extremely fond of East Lothian. In the 1974 general election he lost his seat to the conservative Michael Ancram but regained it in the October 1974 election. For many years Mackintosh balanced his academic career with his duties in the House of Commons. In 1977 He became Chair and Professor of Politics at the University of Edinburgh giving many lectures on political philosophy. Mackintosh was a strong supporter of Scottish Devolution and wrote many works on the subject including; 'The British Cabinet' (1962), 'The Devolution of Power' (1966), and 'The Government and Politics of Britain' (1970). Mackintosh also had a regular paper in The Times and The Scotsman as well as regularly appearing on television and giving public lectures. He was also the editor of the The Political Quarterly and chairman of the Hansard society.

The material consists of the personal and academic papers detailing Mackintosh's political and academic career. The papers document his many academic ventures including his time as an undergraduate at Edinburgh University as well as notes detailing his academic career (1960-1978) including lecture notes from his time at Ibadan, Strathclyde and Edinburgh University. The papers also document his varied political career (1956-1978) including constituency files and papers regarding his work in the House of Commons. A section of the material also covers his literary career detailing his research and correspondence regarding his publications. As Mackintosh was a dedicated constituency MP the material also includes a large amount of correspondence from his constituency members as well as the local authorities.

The papers were arranged by the Secretary of the Registrar and the Keeper of the Records of Scotland the NRAS listing and numeration system was adopted and the papers have been arranged into various sections and subsections which reflect the career of John P Mackintosh which include;
